Rangoli Competition:

Gargaon College, known for its commitment to promoting Indian cultural and knowledge systems, organized a Rangoli competition as part of the College Week 2022. Rangoli, a traditional Indian art form, involves creating intricate and colorful designs on the ground using various materials. The event aimed to showcase the students' artistic talent, creativity, and their understanding of Indian cultural values. Around 50 students from different departments participated enthusiastically, making the competition a vibrant display of art and culture.

Competition Highlights: The Rangoli competition witnessed an impressive display of creativity and skill by the participating students. Each participant showcased their unique interpretation of traditional designs, incorporating their own artistic flair and contemporary elements. The event brought together diverse patterns, colors, and materials, highlighting the richness of Indian cultural heritage.

Results: After a thorough evaluation by a panel of judges, the following students emerged as the winners:

1st Position: Stuti Burhagohain, representing the Chemistry Department, secured the first position in the Rangoli competition. Her exquisite design, perfect symmetry, and attention to detail captivated the judges. Stuti's exceptional artistic abilities and innovative approach in creating her Rangoli design were truly commendable.

2nd Position: Suman Gogoi, from the Sociology Department, won the second prize in the competition. Her Rangoli design reflected a deep understanding of societal themes, portraying social messages through vibrant colors and intricate patterns. Suman's ability to merge her knowledge of sociology with the art of Rangoli was highly appreciated by the judges.

3rd Position: The third position was jointly obtained by three students: Shyamolina Saikia, Riya Devi, and Gitanjali Devi. These students showcased exceptional talent and creativity in their Rangoli designs. Shyamolina's use of floral patterns, Riya's incorporation of traditional motifs, and Gitanjali's unique color combinations impressed the judges, resulting in a tie for the third position.

Conclusion: The Rangoli competition at Gargaon College College Week 2022 proved to be a mesmerizing celebration of Indian art and culture. With around 50 students participating from various departments, the event showcased their creativity, knowledge of Indian cultural and knowledge systems, and their ability to create stunning Rangoli designs. Congratulations to Stuti Burhagohain for securing the first position, Suman Gogoi for winning the second prize, and Shyamolina Saikia, Riya Devi, and Gitanjali Devi for jointly securing the third position. Their remarkable performances and dedication to the art of Rangoli were truly commendable, and their designs added vibrant colors to the College Week celebrations.
