Hosted by: Ms. Sandeepa Agarwalla

Topic: "Studies in Ethnic Conflicts in South Asia: New Trends and Perspectives."

YouTube Link: <https://www.youtube.com/live/IMhVy5vCqhg?feature=share>

Overview: Dr. Chandan Kr. Sarma, an Associate Professor and Head of the Department of History, Dibrugarh University, delivered a lecture on the topic "Studies in Ethnic Conflicts in South Asia: New Trends and Perspectives." The lecture aimed to provide an understanding of the meaning and types of ethnic conflicts, with a focus on the North Eastern region of India. Dr. Sarma also discussed new trends and approaches in the study of ethnic conflicts.

Dr. Sarma began by defining ethnic conflicts as conflicts between different ethnic groups or communities within a particular region. He highlighted that these conflicts are often rooted in differences related to language, religion, culture, and identity. Ethnic conflicts can manifest in various forms, including political, social, economic, and violent confrontations.

During the lecture, Dr. Sarma discussed new trends and perspectives that have emerged in the study of ethnic conflicts. These include interdisciplinary approaches, the examination of long-term historical factors, the role of state policies, and the impact of globalization on ethnic identities and conflicts.

Dr. Sarma supported his arguments by referring to several relevant books on the subject discussing relationship between ethnic conflicts and civic engagement in India, focusing on the Hindu-Muslim divide, linkages between electoral competition and communal riots in India, role of the Indian state in managing and perpetuating ethnic conflicts, particularly between Hindus and Muslims, how communal sentiments and prejudices are perpetuated through social interactions and everyday practices, historical roots of ethnic violence in India, focusing on the colonial period, and the interplay between communalism, caste dynamics, and Hindu nationalism in the context of violence. Overall, the lecture has proven to be an important source of enlightenment for all the participants.

Overview: Dr. Gorky Chakraborty, Associate Professor, Institute of Development Studies Kolkata (IDSK), Kolkata delivered a lecture on the topic "Mess of a Method: Method to a Mess". He differentiated between things that are considered provisionally stable at a point in time and things that are literally stable (stable reality). He also spoke about the necessity of questioning a method before using it and highlighted the importance of decentered subjectivity and situated knowledge. Lastly, he suggested that researchers should broaden the horizon of their knowledge about a method for a better understanding of things.

This session aimed to provide participants with a foundational understanding of utilizing the UGC-CARE website for achieving high-quality publications. Dr Prasenjit Chatterjee, Professor and Dean (Research & Consultancy) at MCKV Institute of Engineering in Howrah, Kolkata, was the resource person on June 27. He discussed on "Systematic Literature Review and PRISMA."

Dr Chatterjee shared insights into conducting systematic literature reviews and introduced the PRISMA (Preferred Reporting Items for Systematic Reviews and Meta-Analyses) guidelines. On June 28, Dr Somnath Maji, Post doctoral Research Fellow from the Department of Radiology at the University of Michigan Medical School, delivered a lecture titled, "Development and Characterization of Osteogenic Microenvironment Mimicking Scaffold for Bone Tissue Engineering."

Dr Maji discussed the creation of a scaffold that imitates the osteogenic micro environment, offering potential applications in bone tissue engineering. In the second session of the same day, Dr Gorky Chakraborty, Associate Professor at the Institute of Development Studies, Kolkata (IDSK), spoke on the topic "Mess of a Method: Method to a Mess."

Concluding the FDP on June 29, Debajyoti Bora, Assistant Professor from the Department of Statistics at Pandit Deendayal Upadhyaya Adarsha Mahavidyalaya (PDUAM) Karimganj, discussed the "Use of Statistical Software in Research."
