World Tourism Day, 27th September, 2022

The Department of Geography, in collaboration with the Department of History, orchestrated a remarkable celebration of World Tourism Day on the 27th of September, 2022. Enthusiastically, students from the Departments of Geography, Sociology and History actively engaged in the event, contributing to its success. The inauguration of the program was graced by the esteemed presence of Dr. Dilip Kumar Deka, Associate Professor in the Department of Geography at Gargaon College.

Dr. Deka, in his inaugural address, provided a succinct overview of the challenges and possibilities within the tourism industry in Assam. Emphasizing the significance of tourism studies in the employment sector of the northeastern part of India, he set the tone for an insightful discourse. Dr. Monjumoni Gogoi, Associate Professor of History, added depth to the discussion by highlighting the pivotal role of the tourism sector in the growth and development of the economy of Assam.

The program gained further depth with the valuable contributions of Dr. Boluram Das, Assistant Professor in the Department of History. Dr. Das delivered a systematic description of the potential historical tourist spots in Assam, shedding light on how these sites could serve as major hubs for the burgeoning tourism industry in the region. Mrs. Monurama Phukan, Assistant Professor in the Department of Geography, enriched the discourse by presenting the potential eco-tourism spots in the upper Assam region.

Concluding the event on an inspiring note, Dr. Raktim Patar, Assistant Professor in the Department of History, passionately encouraged students from diverse disciplines to explore the abundant opportunities available in various courses of travel and tourism management. The collaborative efforts of the Departments of Geography and History resulted in a thought-provoking and insightful celebration of World Tourism Day, leaving a lasting impact on all participants.
