Report on Field Study to Kaziranga National Park

Overview of the Program: Field Study Trip to Kaziranga National Park

Name of the Program: Field Study Trip to Kaziranga National Park

Objective of the program:

To observe and study the habitat and behaviour of animals in their natural habitats and observe the different types of ecosystems and forest types. For the biological sciences in particular, field-based education is essential since it offers the core training and practical knowledge for fields like behaviour of animals, ecology, evolution, systematics and conservation science.

Under the Course: ZC102P

Date: 15/10/2022

Organized by: Department of Zoology, Gargaon College, Simaluguri, Sivasagar.

Visited by: B.Sc. 1st Semester Students and Teacher in-charge

Number of Participants: 24

Nature of Activity: Extension and Outreach

Brief report of the Program:

A field study was conducted in Kaziranga National Park by the students of B.Sc. 1st Semester, Department of Zoology, Gargaon College, as part of their syllabus on 15th October 2022. A total of 24 number of students along with the teacher in charge Dr. Rina Handique and Ms. Pimily Langthasa went on the trip. The trip was carried out to explore the flora and fauna of the national park existing amidst the natural ecosystem and the existing interrelationship among them. The field visit enriched the students with adequate knowledge of the natural ecosystems and the diversity existing therein.

Rationality of the Program:

The outreach programs helped the students to understand the animals and their behaviour in their natural habitats. Additionally, the field study provides a general overview of the existing biodiversity of Kaziranga National Park, current threats, and our contribution to its sustenance. For the biological sciences in particular, field-based education is essential since it offers the core training for fields like behaviour, ecology, evolution, systematics, and conservation science.

Moreover, field-based study allows students to make their own observations, order their experiences, make decisions, and set their own priorities as to what to focus on and what to ignore towards becoming autonomous, self-directed learners. Fieldwork provides an 'unparalleled opportunity' to study the real world. Fieldwork also provides the opportunity to reinforce classroom-based learning and it increases students' knowledge, skills, and subject understanding.
